FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

REGIONAL WORKSHOP TEACHES HOW TO TURN ENVIRONMENTAL PROBLEMS INTO USABLE SITES

Littleton, CO – The Colorado Brownfields Foundation (CBF) is hosting a ½ day workshop on May 24th in Fort Morgan for those interested in value-added opportunities with environmentally challenged property.

Instructors will cover legal, environmental and financial issues for a non-technical audience. This will be followed by interactive discussions and reviews of local case studies. All attendees will receive a 100 page comprehensive workshop guide and a CD-ROM that provides valuable information, strategies, case studies and contacts.

Registration is required and includes a continental breakfast, lunch, and the workshop guide. Real estate agents and lawyers will also qualify for continuing education credits.

For more information about this workshop, or to register, visit <http://www.coloradobrownfieldsfoundation.org/2007workshops.html>

Colorado Brownfields Foundation: A 501 (c) (3) organization that aims to remove environmental obstacles to economic and community development. For more information visit ColoradoBrownfieldsFoundation.org

Brownfields: A site where reuse or redevelopment is complicated by hazardous substances, pollutants, or environmental contaminants. Cleaning and reusing these sites for new development can help minimize sprawl, preserve open space, clean up the environment and reduce the cost of extending roads and infrastructure.
